"I would add I am 100 per cent United States and in sympathy with no European nation, but if Germany can give us something our own producers can't, why, I am in favor of more German films. In your capacity I suppose you can see how useless and how pose you can see how useless and how wasted is the real stuff. People just love to be buncoed. Barnum was right."

(Yes, Barnum was right. But I'm beginning to wonder if you and I aren't the ones he meant. Most certainly, the rest of the world gets a higher per-centage of enjoyment out of the movies and, as long as you and I are fans, we'd be more sensible to take their viewpoint. Yes, Barnum was right-but he

Anyway, call it anxiety, to put into modern hieroglyphics my opinions of the much-discussed yet sparsely attended 'Loves of Pharaoh.' Y'know, it's a great relief to write it.
"Mr. Henry T. Finck-to me, America's greatest musical critic—is credited with the axiom, 'De gustibus non est disputandum' ('Don't argue about matters of taste'). Of course, Mr. Finck made his applications to the harmonious art—but, again with the master, whether it's bread-crust or bananas, one's taste is all a matter of personal development. Good! Now, 'Loves' that you can't agree with.
